

Rockwood was constructed with brick formed and fired from the very earth upon which the structure proudly stands.

Built in 1875 by our ancestors Francis and Sarah Kent Bell, the home has remained in the Bell family for over one hundred and thirty years.

Recent renovation has breathed new life into the original beauty of the home while extensive - yet hidden - modernization enables our guests to enjoy gracious 19th century living in 21st century comfort - minus the distractions.

Drama, war, family, romance and true life saga abound in this National Historic Registered Landmark.

Rockwood has no equal within one hundred miles.

We warmly invite you to make this incomparable historic gem the venue for your next event. Weddings, receptions, reunions, parties and meetings: Rockwood has been home to all.

Inside or outside Rockwood's three floors and 11,000 square feet you will find the perfect location for that special gathering. The dining room, the front porch and even the massive barn have each been witness to weddings.

Get to know your lover all over again in the tranquil and romantic atmosphere of the old South.

Get to know your lover all over again: Rockwood's tranquil and romantic atmosphere is the perfect setting for intimate getaways. Seventeen working fireplaces throughout the house ensure that a chilly corner will scarcely be found in winter months.

Ten bedrooms with rates ranging from $100-$160 per night assures that your escape is well within reach.

Few diversions are more relaxing than whiling away the time in a rocker while conversing with favorite person on the wraparound porch.

Frank Drummond III, Innkeeper and great-great grandson of Rockwood's builders, cordially invites you to visit and consider this incomparable gem as setting for your event or as a treasured retreat.

Frank believes in the wonders of creativity and will guide you to all of the wonders this New River Valley offers.

Photography: Michael Havelin, Jeri Rogers Photography, Frank Drummond, NRCC TechWeb Partners

ROCKWOOD MANOR
5189 Rockwood Road
Dublin, VA 24084

HISTORIC ROCKWOOD MANOR

B&B INN AND EVENT CENTER

WWW.ROCKWOOD-MANOR.COM
540-674-1328